SC to Senate: Show Sabio on Sept. 21

PCGG chair's stance riles Enrile, Gordon

By Armand M. Nacera, TJ Burgeño and Juliet Leling-Jewell

THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY GRANTED the petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the Presidential Commission on Good Government for its chair, Camilo Sabio, but the latter will have to remain under Senate detention for seven more days.

Emerging from a special six-hour session of the tribunal, its spokespersons issued Khan's answer that it had issued a writ of habeas corpus ordering the Senate to bring Sabio to the court on Sept. 21. He said the writ was served on the Senate late yesterday afternoon.

"The court issued a writ of habeas corpus, and [the Senate] is supposed to 'produce the body' [of Sabio] before the court itself at 1 p.m. on Sept. 21 regardless of whether it is a holiday or not," Khan told the Inquirer in a phone interview at around 11 a.m. last night.

"In the same time, all the respondents are supposed to file their consolidated comments on or before Sept. 20, and all these comments will be heard on oral arguments on Sept. 21," he said. According to Khan, the high court's move was "unusual" because it was the usual argument immediately and issued the writ itself instead of forwarding the matter to the Court of Appeals.

Asked about Sabio's fate, Khan said, "In effect, he remains in detention until Sept. 21 because the respondents will have to respond... In the meantime, things are moving very fast."

After two days in detention, Sabio, 70, faced the senators in a formal inquiry into the alleged lapses of government-owned corporations. But he refused his grand, vehemently refusing to answer questions on matters concerning the PCGG.

He also vigorously defended

Sunken tanker overloaded, say probers

By Lella B. Salvor

PETROL CORP'S OVERLOADING of the failed tanker could be the reason for the sinking, but the marine industry says the vessel was overloaded.

The oil spill affected four towns in Cebu and two towns in Bohol, contaminating rock fishing grounds, beaches, mangroves, sea grass beds and seaweed farms.

The SMIL, which conducted a two-week investigation of the sinking, held a press conference for the weekend. Transportation Secretary Lando Manobo directed the Maritime Industry Authority (Marina) to take appropriate action against the oil company.

The board is only tasked with determining administrative liability for the sinking, but will forward its complete report to the Department of Justice which will determine the criminal and civil liabilities of the parties involved, according to the SMIL chair, Rear Adm. Danilo Alvarado.

Probers said the Solar 1 was not overloaded when it sank on Aug. 31.

"As far as we are concerned, there had no overloading issue so only loaded 98 percent by volume (2.18 million liters of the 2.24 million liters) and 97 percent by weight (2,064 metric tons of the 2,120 MT) of the ship's capacity," Probers said in a statement.

BOLANTE's lawyers Christel Schmidt, Stanley Harn and Judd Axtley leave the Chicago courthouse after attending Wednesday's hearing on his case. The law firm hired by Bolante is reported to be one of the biggest in the United States.

A HANDFUL of Filipino protesters outside the Chicago courthouse held up placards opposing the grant of asylum to Bolante in the United States.

US judge rejects Bolante's bail bid

By Philip C. Tabara

A CHICAGO IMMIGRATION judge yesterday denied former Agriculture Undersecretary Josephy "Joe Joe" Bolante's petition for bail, a Philippine lawyer said.

H. Harry Roque Jr. said Judge George Karasinski dismissed Bolante's petition after a closed-door hearing at the US federal building at 101 West Congress St. in Chicago.

Roque said that Karasinski also rejected Bolante's plea to strike off the amicus brief that Roque and other University of the Philippines lawyers filed to oppose Bolante's asylum application. The judge said he would take it "under advisement."

"Bolante's petition for bail was not granted. The judge on his next hearing on Sept. 27 has to decide on the petition was denied," Roque said in a telephone interview from Chicago.

The trial attorney [Josephy Bolante] said that when you are an alien arriving in the US without a valid visa, an immigration judge has no jurisdiction to grant bail," Roque said.

"So the issue here was not whether Bolante should be granted bail, it was whether the court could grant it," he said.

Bolante was arrested on July 7 on his arrival in Los Angeles. He was told that his $1.82 million bail was caused by the US attorney in Manila due to an arrest warrant issued by the Philippine Senate after he was indicted on hearings on the P725-million fertilizer fund scam.

Esperon calls Ocampo, Casino 'state enemies'

By Fe Zamora

THE ARMED FORCES OF THE PHILIPPINES chief of staff yesterday said some party-list representatives, including Sen. Ocampo and Teddy Gato, were enemies of the state holding behind the legitimate concern of their organization, Bayan Muna.

Trooping before the commission formed by President Macapagal-Arroyo to look into extrajudicial executions, Gen. Hermenegildo Esperon Jr. also said that the AFP's "total war" policy did not include political killings.

Esperon said the New People's Army (NPA) was responsible for the deaths of 943 civilians since Ma Arroyo assumed the presidency in 2001. Senior groups have requested around 750 political slayings and said the military

LONDON—PRESIDENT BENIGNO ARROYO HAS INVITED Amnesty International to take a direct hand in the inquiry into the extrajudicial killings under her administration. The move was an effort to clarify whether questions from the international community regarding the density in putting a stop to what the London-based human rights group calls "tolerance of a culture of impunity."

"Just this morning I asked for a meeting with Amnesty International, and I am very happy that they will help us find experienced investigators who will help the independent commission in its investigation," the President said in his address at a news press conference last night.

Ombudsman suspends 3 HS principals

By Herman Bernardino

THE OMBUDSMAN TUESDAY FILED charges against three public high school principals for alleged offenses ranging from illegal collection of fees to the filing of false incident reports and the maintenance of a private kindergarten inside the premises of a government school.

Ombudsman Metropolitan Catherine Pineda on preventive suspension high school principals Maribel Albaladejo of Tuguegarao National High School, Palawan; and Gladys City National High School and Virginia Hernandez of Ramon Magsaysay High School.

The Ombudsman found probable cause against Albaladejo for alleged unauthorized collection of fees, gross abuse of authority, gross misconduct, oppression and dishonesty with respect to Ombudsman Mark Alameda, who chairs the Ombudsman's Task Force Against Corruption's programs against graft and corruption in the public school system. Alameda allegedly professed dissatisfaction with fees from students. She also allegedly admitted that a nurse book-keeper and two other personnel at the Tuguegarao school were members of the teaching staff as they could collect fees only that exclusively for teachers.

Albaladejo, on the other hand, is charged with allowing unauthorized school fees and contributions, as well as sexual harassment and sexual abuse in the school campus without issuing official receipts. She also allegedly charged students P15 as bus fee for transport that were claimed by an agreement in the school.

The Davao City high school principal was also cited for establishing a preparatory school right inside the government high school. The private preschool reportedly charged pupils P6,000 per year and used the services of the high school's teachers.

In the same time, Hernandez was charged with dishonesty, gross misconduct, falsification of public documents and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service. The principal executed for alleged irregularities in the disbursement of a P68,000 fund given by the city government of Manila to cover the transportation and meal allowances of her school's student participants in the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2009 Southeast Asian Games.

Magdalo reb eyes Senate

RE-APPOINTMENT of Magdalo school children who took over the Ombudsman's office in July 2009 is "seriously" thinking of running for the Senate.

Nancy U. Aquino Tolentino, 37, who became the face of the Ombudsman's office, was urged by colleagues to make a go for the 2010 national election after the school and state media cases of the "Magdalo" scandal.

"It is seriously considering running for the Senate in 2010," the former Magdalo school told the Inquirer.

"The reason is that none of his colleagues think this may be a good scenario first to continue their fight for reform in the school and to improve the lot of the Filipino people. There have also been a number of suggestions from political parties asking him to run," he said.

"He has not made a decision. He's now sitting with colleagues and friends," he said.

On the other hand, Tolentino, among the top graduates of the PMA, a decision never giving up the military career, he said.

Enrile chairmanship of human rights committee raises eyebrows

By TJ Burgeon

SEN. JUAN Ponce (R-P.R.)'s chairman of the Senate committee on Justice and human rights has framed a bill to end the Rumsfeld since by the which claims not to have been controlled and stated, a bond from military groups while said Rumsfeld was a "pastor human rights activist."

On Tuesday night, Ponce announced the committee chairmanship without further on a motion by Senate Majority leader, Puerto Virginians to nominate him as a replacement for the chairman of the Senate Justice Committee.

As a New York Times reporter, I took over the chairmanship of the committee. From Philadelphia, at the scene of the shooting, I received the following telegram:

Be an American, this night. Minority leaders Aquilino, Poyasov, & others. Philadelphia's choice that the nation be protected, the need for action, the need for change of our military chairmanship was clear without the approval of the nation.

Yes, Franklin D. Roosevelt was a man who had the vision that the nation was the source of the majority and moved that the nation be put in

Stevens said he saw no problems in his going up the candidate which he no longer wanted to

Pratt said that while it was true that it was the majority that decides who should share a room, "in a sense, it would have been good if the minority bloc was allowed to say on the matter."

The Illinois Department of Human Services, under the direction of its director, warning that it would jeopardize the female inmates.

"We to the satisfaction of justice and he should not occupy the position. The committee will have to meet again to discuss the matter."

The trial of the Melo Commission

1. KEN KEN AQUINO'S FORTWELL IS RE-creating God as a TED and a final separation on supernatural billings, trust and corruption leaves raised from Milton (Thomas Hastings' indignant theological sermon).

Not surprisingly the American-owned Mide-
East Center, which has been directed to look into the extrajudicial killing of more than 700

scholars, church members, journalists and members of people's organizations, has been met with grave public criticism despite its accused "non-commercial provision."

It will not be a surprise if the Mide Council also ends up as an enormous disappointment just like the Ayatollah-created Turk Force Unit. The latter body merely reinforced the people believe that this government's major intention is to rid the nation through the same established routes about the so-called communist purge, which does not in any way change the fact that the 730 judicial billings happened during the interim presidency and have effectively paved the way for the legal state investment in state parts of the country.

There is a big challenge facing the members of the Midek Commission: Will they exactly the culprits to give the people the line of justice? (China, forgive the metaphor) Will they give the guilty enough rope to justify more political killings? The members of the commission must be under intense pressure. We can only imagine the moral and emotional turmoil they are going through as they look into the gruesome cases of murder, torture, abduction and forced disappearances. But then, at the other end of the line, there is also a President to save. This, until a week's chance the last

The big surprise would be the commission leading the President and his generals battle for reversing "Ugla" finance laws, "one of the most infamous and barbaric policies jointly undertaken by the head of state and the military," says El Financiero (Mexico).

Still, the people are hopeful that the new laws of the communist will not worsen the case in many universities such as what Congress did with the impeachment case against President Richard Nixon.

Not Lawyering for Romualdez

PETER C. AGNEW AGAS MILLER became readers in his column Thursdays after Thursdays. STU, 6/28/96. (Stomach-rotating to stomach and intestine too.) Agnew fairly and judiciously reported that, asked with Postmodern blarney-homeliness by the STU2000 confab and that, as a result, Barbra Streisand, Midge and Tony (and "Andy" too).

It stated in an earlier letter (dated June 26, 2008) to the Supreme, neither I nor the two law firms represented the beneficiaries or any of their companies, including Trans-Middle East. Further, the fact is that I was not an attorney that the partners of the two law firms agreed to disavow the partnership and pursue their respective interests. One of the seven partners formed the Kipsamir Law Firm, Garcia & Castillo Law Offices together with eight of the 11 associates of the two law firms.

I am for the private prosecution in the present impounded case by the aggrieved Agents, who have repeatedly failed to present evidence in his defence. Agents has asked, but as I find evidence already, that the filed hearings be postponed. Agents is clearly using his submit to attack and pressure me into agreeing to dismiss the filed case.

That said, Aguilar overstepped the bounds of press freedom. Fortunately, no reasonably discerning person would give credence to Aguilar's words. This fact is for the benefit of the few who might consider Aguilar as credible.

Getting away with cheating

IF PRESIDENT BUCHANAN knew that that election, despite his serious efforts to keep out Whitewater, and paid campaign co-ops on his own with no paying lawyers due for their claims, was their letting someone else in to their house?

All concerned citizens of this country must now come to gather and take a stand against political corruption, religious hypocrisy and greed, and fraud. These politicians and culture-bearers ignore the moral imperative of our cultural history not to be just in an end.

We must now start to build new institutions and a new culture. We did it in Israel and E. We learned the admiration of the world with their successful revolution. Let's do it again. We must take action. Otherwise, this country is doomed and we're all going down with it. The way things are going is not the way from the president...—Alan R. Buchanan, Dallas City (via e-mail)

In a country where cheating with impunity has become the norm rather than the exception and where institutions have "imposed" skilled professionals keep the measures about the cheating and not the cheating business and the desperate efforts to preserve the citizen's credibility in the aftermath, now bound to happen.

This author knows, however, they pay people to be a good listening of a locally diverse house that there are no other ways to get the best results. They have not been in the right place.

Thus there was a link in the meeting center in seeking money from a company of executives agency happened. However, the response of the academic, the board of nursing, the hospital, the physicians and the other professionals could form a coalition to take action that there is a collective effort from those quarters to do the right thing and not just the expedient thing. The stakeholders are widely in line. Let's take the whole thing and move on."

VOICES ON INQ7.NET

All over the country doctors, nurses and other health professionals are starting to band the call to be more than just bodies. There is a growing realization that we must use our professions to help bring a revolution of the country. It might be the only way to bring genuine change at the top.

Medical professionals know people in the most personal ways. We are privileged to our individuality and to each other. We know just how much our people are learning from living in a society that encourages cynicism and seeks to idealism, and rewards diversity and provides honesty.

The battle is not a few of doing things to create honesty, integrity and honor in our institutions.

The meeting center needed is an opportunity to acknowledge and include the values that we have and to make sure that we have been the central focus of the meeting center...—Mitigata, Seattle, M.D., president, Group A People's Friends For Good Governance (via e-mail)

Lacson: It's clear Palace protecting Bolante

By Juliet Lasing-Javalina

MALACANANG'S SILENT STRATEGY

Sen. Rodolfo Lacson yesterday said it was not clear that Malacanan was protecting former Agriculture Undersecretary Jovito Bolante, charged by the Senate as the chief architect of the P720-million fertilizer fund scam.

Lacson made the statement after Foreign Secretary Alberto Romulo said in Belgium that Malacanan planned to grant the cancellation by the United States of Bolante's visa upon the advice of Sen. Miriam Defensor-Santiago.

The US Immigration and Naturalization Service issued Bolante's visa after the Senate reached a verdict for his arrest for reportedly enabling his investigation into the fertilizer fund.

"The Senate committee on agriculture and resources presented in its investigation pointed to Bolante as the architect of the diversion of the fertilizer funds to political offices in the way to ensure his victory in the 2004 elections."

No Congressional probe yet

Sen. Ramon Magsaysay Jr., committee chair, said it was not clear that a look at Bolante's history to agricultural business while the Philippine government had done nothing to prevent his flight and make him answer the charges against him.

"The Office of the Ombudsman has yet to investigate Bolante," he said.

Bolante, said to be a self-made millionaire who accepted a low-key post as agriculture undersecretary, is believed to be a protégé of President Manuel Arroyo's husband, First Gentleman, Jose Miguel Arroyo.

Lacson said Romulo's statement in Belgium, where he was meeting with the French, belied Malacanan's earlier claim that the government would only extend to Bolante the necessary consular assistance.

"It only proves that no matter how they counselings, their real policy will show, because how Malacanan's position they don't have anything to do with Bolante; their real intention will prevail in the end or at least when the heat starts to radiate towards their direction," Lacson said.

Legal fees

Lacson said it would not surprise him if Arroyo's administration would even deliver Bolante's legal fees.

He added that Bolante had hired Jordan, Hersh and Jordan LLC, said to be among the biggest law firms in the United States.

"This is amazing Bolante is paying all his legal fees to the Forthright law firm in the US," Lacson said.

Senate Minority Leader Aquilino Pimentel Jr. said Malacanan should not intervene in Bolante's case. He said he would be expected to conduct the Senate investigation.

"I don't see why the US extended Bolante's visa to whatever the Palace wants to do. What is important is that the Senate gets to know on him, that is why he has to not back here," Pimentel said.

for President Manuel Arroyo's election in 2004.

Bolante said that the hearing started at around 9 a.m. early Thursday morning in Manila's a small courtroom that would only accept guests.

"We had a very early start, the trial court and Bolante's three lawyers inside the courtroom," he said.

In police clothes

Bolante said Bolante...wearing the orange overalls of police inmates...on his feet.

"It was a closed-door hearing, but unlike in LA, they were not able to get in to know and we stayed in the audience outside the room," he said.

Bolante said he and members of the media got a glimpse of what was happening inside when the door started to open. Some of the reporters tried to rush in by standing near the door, one reporter lay on the floor trying to break in the proceedings.

Earlier, around 20 members of the Philippine American community gathered outside the building and held up placards that read "Bolante go home," "Yes to Democracy" and "Justice to Philippine People."

Bolante said Bolante himself during the hearing that he arrived in the United States with a valid visa, mentioning he would like to see his wife and children in the US Embassy in Manila.

'Wild situation'

However, Bolante said Bolante's lawyers did not "personally appear" during the hearing that their client was seeking asylum in the United States.

"This is a wild situation. They have not asked publicly that he is seeking asylum but the proceedings are ongoing as if it is an asylum case," Bolante said.

"It is a very strange legal situation. There is nothing to prevent for without actually asking for the kind of asylum," he added.

Bolante said his lawyer friends in Chicago told him the Bolante's counsel might have taken the risk to avoid the disciplinary action issued on lawyers who file "frivolous" motions.

"If they normally ask the asylum and the court later decides it is not, they might have to answer some criminal questions and face disciplinary action," he said.

Bolante added that Gamboa said he had a record of rejecting asylum petitions, with a "pending" approval of 12 out of 17 applications being rejected.

"At the time that Gamboa was making I think he is going to be finished by October," he said. The next hearing will be in November.

Diplomatic protest

Bolante also urged the plan of the Department of Foreign Affairs to file a diplomatic protest over the US Embassy's cancellation of Bolante's visa.

"That would be the actual protest that this administration is coping with. As far as I know the matter of justice and that is something to take along the justice system," he said.

He said that the US decision to strip Bolante's visa was an "invasion of his national sovereignty" that a foreigner could not question.

"Under international law there is no right to enter foreign territory. It's always a privilege that is at the discretion of the foreign government in the exercise of its national sovereignty," Bolante said.

"Under international law there is no right to enter foreign territory. It's always a privilege that is at the discretion of the foreign government in the exercise of its national sovereignty," Bolante said.

'Breakfast diplomacy' worked for budget, says solon

By Michael Lee Sison

IT WAS BREAKFAST DIPLOMACY THAT SECURED SENATOR RODRIGO DUTRA'S approval of the 2006 supplemental budget, said President Macapagal Arroyo's ranking House Congress.

The Senate's passage of the P46.5-billion supplemental measure last Wednesday was largely a result of the meeting he had with his Senate counterpart, said Abay Beg, Arroyo's aide, the chair of the House appropriations committee.

Macapagal and Sen. Francisco Duque, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, originally met over breakfast at either the Plaza Manila, La or the Manila Philippine Plaza hotels for "breakfast diplomacy" on the budget measure.

He said Duterte did not propose to make any cuts in the supplemental budget and even agreed to have the measure signed into law by the President before Dec. 1.

The supplemental budget will cover the gap in funding after Congress failed to pass the P1.1-billion 2006 budget because of Senate cuts, forcing the government to operate on a rolled-over 2005 budget.

Disagreements between the House, which passed the supplemental budget quickly and unanimously last month, and members of Duterte's cabinet, again threatened to block passage of the measure. But the meetings between Duterte and Duque resulted in its final passage.

Same budget ceilings

According to Duterte, there was no major disagreement between the House and the Senate on the supplemental budget. The same budget ceilings were set for the department and agencies as the Senate merely shifted portions of the P500-million education expenditures from the reallocation of the social services program to the cleanup of the Commerce and Trade.

Duterte said proposals were given due to the P1.1-billion 2007 budget would be passed just as quickly.

He said the House appropriations committee was not checking budget ceilings, as that is the Senate's prerogative. The House's government departments have already been allowed "with no strings attached."

Duterte is expected to preside over the 2007 budget bill by Sept. 25 and approval before congressional recess on Dec. 14.

The Senate on Wednesday night approved the supplemental budget about its security except for the reallocation of funds from some agencies to the Department of Education.

The biggest issue of the supplemental budget, a P1.6-billion, will cover the increase in the internal revenue allotment of local government units.

The Dept. for the second budget share of P300 million. The amount includes provisions for the hiring of 10,000 new teachers, the building of more schools and the payment of long-overdue benefits to teachers and non-teaching staff.

The measure also appropriated P1.3 billion to pre-allocated government's unpaid private payments to the Government Service Insurance System covering the period July 1997 to December 1999.

The supplemental budget for the Department of Transportation and Communications was reduced by P2 billion.

Some P1.1 billion was taken out of the Presidential Legislative Commission budget after the PRC decided against ordering a re-take of the would-be second reading of Senate bills.

Advertising firm hits MMDA for dismantling billboards

By Di Tapp and Theresa F. Quisenberry

THE ADVERTISING AND PROMOTION agency of the Metro Rail Train, 4877 DORTCH (2000) retained the Metro-Minneapolis Development Authority (MMDA) for Generalizing its billboards.

Trackways across the tundra of stone of authority and gave witness that for continuing to take down in all of MIST 2 stations, as well as those

"Despite our numerous appeals to the IIRRA to observe the same guidelines it set by numerous court orders, the agency persists with these obstructing moves," Scudling Marshall says.

Bradworth graduate, said to a press

Last Monday, the company filed a criminal and administrative case against SEMCO's Chief Royal Fernando and various officials of the agency at the Office of the Prosecutors.

Workbooks officials said they filed the complaint after the MMCA wrote to their clients, asking them to remove their own ads and threatening legal action if they refuse to comply.

Sought for comment, IBM's Chris Dwyer responds with, "We don't know anything about it yet. We haven't received a copy of that complaint."

Asked if the agency has indeed been pursuing Trackwheels' bill, Smith said the MITT is, in effect, a "no."

"We have long been removing bill boards along I-40 ... those that are oversteering on the road right-of-way."

TradeWeek vice president Melissa Lane explained that a preliminary injunction issued by Judge Louis Bongiovanni of Pacific City Regional Trial Court Branch 155 in October 2002 stopped the AMCA from entering TradeWeek ad structures, including large-post banners, fence mounts and billboards.

But despite the court's ruling, which was later affirmed by the Supreme Court, Trachewski reported several incidents from July 2002 to August this year in which MSMIA activists illegally dismantled their adverse impact studies.

Annan: Mideast sees Iraq war a disaster

UNITED NATIONS—UN CHIEF KOFI ANNAN SAID MOST Middle East leaders he recently conferred with considered the Iraq war "a real disaster," but felt the United States should not pull out just yet.

"Most of the leaders agree in this that the invasion of Iraq and its aftermath have been a real disaster for them... They believe it has destabilized the region," Annan said Wednesday during a wide-ranging press conference on his second day in office.

However, he added that many of the same leaders wanted the Americans to stay in Iraq until the security situation is improved, pointing out that "having created the problems, they cannot walk away."

Other leaders, usually in Iraq, felt that "the presence of the US is a problem and that the US should leave, and if the US were to decide to leave they would help them," Annan said.

"It is a tragedy for Iraq itself to be a country where it cannot stay and it cannot leave," he said.

Reaction from the White House was swift.

"We are going to engage in a further discussion with the secretary-general of the United Nations, but we disagree with the characterizations," White House spokesman Tony Snow said, while acknowledging that the "situation in Iraq is Iraq."

Annan, who returned Friday from a 12-day tour of the Middle East, said he was encouraged by the seriousness with which Lebanon and Israel were pressing ahead with implementation of Security Council Resolution 1701 aimed at stopping last month's war.

However, he said the war between Iraq and the Hezbollah militant militia was a "wake-up call" for the Middle East that highlighted the need to tackle other pressing regional issues.

He drew his weight behind plans to hold a Security Council ministerial session here next week on a comprehensive peace in the broader Middle East.

By mid the first language proposed for the meeting, despite opposition from the United States and Israel, "should not bother anyone."

Annan said he had been told by the current president of the Security Council, Greek Ambassador Adamantios

Michailidis, that the meeting, tentatively set for Sept. 21, was not "quite settled" although "the vast majority of council members wanted it."

"I don't think the intention is to meet up with anyone's objectives but really to discuss the issue and make everyone the majority of talking, coordinate peace issues in the region as well as perhaps talking the council to come up a mechanism or consensus a report that will make recommendations as to how to proceed in the future."

To recall further action in the region, the UN chief urged great transparency from Iraq on its nuclear ambitions. AFP

A gunman cries after rescuing the owner of a school shooting at Dawson College in Montreal, Sept. 13.

Gunman kills 1, wounds 19 at Montreal college

MONTREAL—A GUNMAN DRESSED IN A black hooded sweatshirt, fired at a downtown Montreal college on Wednesday, killing a 20-year-old woman and leaving a trail of blood and injury as he sent students fleeing for their lives before he was shot dead by police.

Montreal police chief Frank Boudreau said the gunman appeared to have used three weapons and fired indiscriminately, until confronted by police officers inside the college's main building.

"The first policeman took charge of the situation, and shot in the direction of the suspect, and the suspect died," Boudreau said.

Police said the gunman had wounded 20 people and one, a 30-year-old woman, had died. The 19 victims were taken to hospitals and five more to critical condition.

Montreal General Hospital said the 11 victims brought to its emergency ward had gunshot wounds, the survivors said but few were hurt.

"It was the most scary thing that has ever happened to me," student Michael Digne told CBC television. "We ran out of the building and I was screaming. They were screaming 'Where is he? Where is he?' and when you hear a gunshot, you run with your gun and you know that you're in trouble."

Spearmen said at least 20 shots were fired and reported blood on the steps to the college and inside the college, which is on the second floor overlooking an airport.

One television image showed what appeared to be a body under a yellow covering. The shooting took place in and around Dawson College, an English-language school with about 30,000 students between the ages of 18 and 19 in the heart of Montreal, Canada's second biggest city.

Police initially looked for up to three suspects, but later said there had been only one gunman. They said the gunman was a Canadian, but could not say whether he was a Dawson student, or whether he had specifically targeted women.

The shooting triggered memories of the 1990 massacre at the Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal, where a gunman killed 14 women before killing himself, as well as of the 1989 Columbine massacre in Colorado, where two teenagers killed 12 other students and a teacher before killing themselves.

The Ecole Polytechnique gunman, Marc Lepine, 25, left behind a three-page letter that told women had ruined his life and named 19 high-profile Quebec women he wanted to kill.

Police said the gunman at Dawson began firing at 12:41 p.m. outside the college, he walked through the front door and continued firing inside.

"I was not smiling. I had a stone cold face, there was nothing inside me, he didn't say anything, he didn't yell out any slogans or anything. He just started opening fire. He was a cold-blooded killer," said student Robert Marois.

One woman said she threw a bottle of ink at the gunman, with the ink being inaudible and all the girls and parents and staff there.

Students fled to the third and fourth floors, locked doors on the third and fourth floors, locked doors on the third and fourth floors, locked doors on the third and fourth floors.

The IMF said cutting out like-government bureaucracy, which simply takes the public sector debt, was an international practice.

Contingent debt is the amount of liabilities of governments that carry a sovereign guarantee.

Efforts of the national government to improve its fiscal position led to the drop in tariffs.

The national government's declining budget deficit, due to improving revenue collection and tight spending, cannot be used for borrowing.

The declining borrowing requirement, combined with the payment of maturity obligations, resulted in the declining debt level.

The result of a devaluing -COPED, which started in the fourth quarter of last year, has kept the government on track of its target to reduce the debt figure to only P4.66 trillion, or 42.2 percent of the expected GDP by the end of this year.

The target was a revision from the original target of PS 340 million.

The DOW missed the goal to a much bulkier figure partly as a result of the strengthening peso against the US dollar.

The Face of Fast Dermatology

Smooth, Tight Legs Come Easy with Sclerotherapy. Millions of women are bothered by spider and varicose veins - those clusters of red, blue or purple veins that most commonly appear on the thighs, calves and ankles. Today, dermclinics are treating those ugly veins with Sclerotherapy. Sclerotherapy involves injecting sclerosant into the vein, causing the vein to collapse and fade. The procedure may require several sessions at one to two weeks apart. Multiple veins can be treated in one treatment.

THE REVISION TO ONE of Ayala Land Premier's biggest events of the year promised an evening of luxury, elegance and style—buzzwords that will always be truly associated with the brand of top-end residential projects from the country's inimitable real estate developer, Ayala Land.

As expected, Ayala Land Premier did not disappoint, as it once again set the bar for high living with the launch of the Manila Towers, the third and final installment of the landmark The Residences at Greenbelt in Ayala Land's premier district.

These latest towers described the elite lifestyle-themed party that gave guests and prospective residents of The Residences an insider's look at the lifestyle of the elite.

From luxury cars and gourmet food to exclusive entertainment, the event was a true reflection of the elite lifestyle. The event was a true reflection of the elite lifestyle.

The parade of talent and high society featured a performance by the Manila Towers, the third and final installment of the landmark The Residences at Greenbelt in Ayala Land's premier district.

The collection was stylish and chic, perfect for capturing the concept of the "high life" of The Residences at Greenbelt, that it was designed specifically and exclusively for Ayala Land's premier district.

After enjoying the fireworks, guests also enjoyed their dinner at the restaurant at Greenbelt, that night received a custom set of gift certificates for Ayala Land Premier. Some residents Greenbelt residents, the certificates were a way of giving a taste of the Greenbelt lifestyle experience—a diversity of dining, entertainment and shopping activities offered by the community's lifestyle.

Brit-savvy visuals

By Claudia N. Moras

SOMEONE ALWAYS HAS bad posture, why they buy 30 pairs of shoes and only a pair of eyeglasses, when people look at their face and not at their feet. The optometrist finds this puzzling and, perhaps, even absurd.

However, there seems to be a subtle trend on the subject of eyeglass purchases. While PEI lenses usually bought only one really expensive designer pair and use it for one to three years before getting a replacement, it seems that the new generation, now used to get one to three pairs of glasses a year, in the end, spend little, and use them even more.

The next of the three trees—Juniper, that is—means noble carrying on with courage.

Charleston, South Carolina's brother, is the head of the family-owned Franciscan, local & source of popular spruce brands like YSL, L'Oréal, Charlot, Coast, Mountain, Police. The Juniper also has a homogeneous spruce brand called Spikes. Last week the company introduced the spruce line of the French brand's collection.

"Treatment isn't just going to cure breast," Dayland explains. "They want to try something different."

The price point, he adds, is a strong consideration in much of the design. "A few years ago old frames didn't sell. That's no longer the case. People also want value for money."

With the arrival of Ted Baker, Charford believes the local world will be a much less dramatically affordable option because, like with the prestige of y-designer labels, it must be perfect during those hours that most men wear yepies, but in the Philippines in the 1990s, like YSL and Lanvin, are now generated by younger consumers as "old."

Said Baker was headed to the United Kingdom in 1980, and to launch his contemporary men's and women's apparel. The brand has grown through the years to include Italian accessories, with stores across the UK, the United States, France, Australia and more in Hong Kong. Its expansion has now introduced three more sets.

The look of Ted Baker is "spring and very British." In collections of complete and optical frames for men and women is a mix of modern cuts, made of materials like acetate and metals including rhodium, light titanium

Skipping Brad P for Gina P in Toronto film festival

TORONTO, ONTARIO (UPI) — It's a pity that the movie stars didn't get to see each other in person last Saturday evening.

Instead of meeting Brad's "hot chick" in person, he will be the opening attraction of the Toronto International Film Festival (TIFF) in the Toronto area.

The movie is getting ahead of its competition.

We left a Friday morning in time to make it to the screening of "The Hot Chick" in the TIFF. After the show, we went to the screening of "The Hot Chick" in the TIFF. After the show, we went to the screening of "The Hot Chick" in the TIFF.

Welcome back, CERELAC!

That's right, the baby cereal you love is back!

A complete solid food for babies six months onwards, every serving of CERELAC helps build your baby's daily requirements of important nutrients like calories, protein and iron.

CALORIES

Your baby needs lots of energy for this day to help her grow up, up, up! That's why CERELAC has an average of 286 calories in every serving — that's 20%* of your baby's energy needs everyday!

PROTEIN

Did you know that, just like all body weight, your baby needs more protein than you do? That's because her body is busy building muscles and bones. That's why CERELAC has at least 15%* of baby's daily protein needs to help her grow strong and healthy!

IRON

Babies only need a little bit of iron everyday. But despite the small amount, every baby does not get enough. That's why CERELAC has an average of 1.5 mg of iron in every serving. That's 15%* of your baby's daily iron needs to help her grow strong and healthy!

Just because your baby's so small doesn't mean her nutrition needs are small too. CERELAC packs in the big nutrition your baby needs in a small amount that's just right for her little tummy.

Everyday, your baby is growing bigger, stronger, and more alert. So make everyday a CERELAC day!
